¹ The Academia Europaea is an international, non-governmental association of individual scientists and scholars. The Academy is pan-European with elected members drawn from the whole European continent and some non-European countries. Membership is currently in the region of 6,000 who cover the natural sciences, the humanities and letters. The Academy was founded in 1988. Members are grouped into four classes - Humanities; Social and Societal Sciences; Exact Sciences and Life Sciences. There are 23 multidisciplinary academic sections distributed between the classes. The Academia Europaea organises workshops, conferences, study groups; publishes the European Review and other academic materials; provides expert advice on European Science policy matters either alone and through the European Academies Science Advisory Council (EASAC) and the Sciences Advice for Policy by European Academies (SAPEA) project supported by the European Union Horizon Europe programme. The organisation is registered under UK law as a not-for-profit charity and Company limited by guarantee.
